Point	Listening	Hearing
Type of Act	1. Psychological Act	1. Physiological Act
Process	2. Active mental process.	2. Passive bodily process.
Operation	3. Involves audio sensing ear drums, conscious psyche & an alert brain.	3. Involves subconscious functioning of sound detecting eardrums.
Starting Point	4. Listening starts after hearing	4. Hearing begins before we listen.
Activity	5. Focus is on a particular sound of interest to understand its meaning.	5. We are not entirely aware of sounds we hear irrespective of our like or dislike.
Reason	6. We listen to gain knowledge, receive useful information, and are, therefore, worth listening.	6. We hear because we neither have full awareness nor any control over what we hear.
Attention and focus	7. In listening, we are selective and focus only on some wanted sounds and ignore unwanted sounds.	7. In hearing, we are not selective, we are not focused at all. Here, we're forced to hear all present sounds altogether.
